3100 South 4505 West
Redwood Road
Salt Lake City, Utah

Story Telling
We all have fun and exciting
stories about how we found,
or didn't find,
that elusive hidden treasure.
We will gather round
and swap tales

The Promptness Prize is drawn from the log book of those who came to the meeting on time

Tickets are sold at the meeting to give you a chance to win one or more of the assortment of coins, tokens and other stuff on display at the front of the room.

Members are encouraged to bring the best things they have found since the last meeting for the Find of the Month Competition.

President's Message

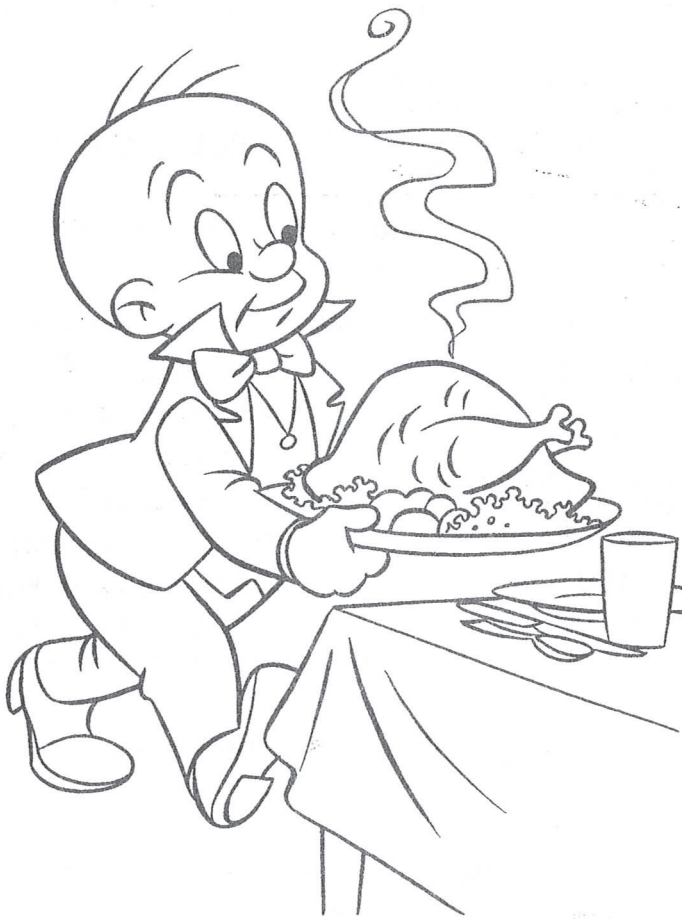

Thank you Lisa Lee Boren for that amazing story last month of Utah's most fantastic treasure. I will not start hiking through the High Uintas searching for the ancient Aztec treasure, but still, I get goose bumps just thinking about it.

Your Favorite Treasure Hunting Story is the topic of this month's meeting. Several members have suggested that we have one meeting where each person can tell about his best find or his favorite hunting story. Each person who tells a story will get a gift, and we will also have a prize for the best story.

NUTS Officer Elections will take place this month. We will open nominations again for any other possible candidates, followed by official elections.

Nominations thus far are as follows:

President.....	Dave Rowell
Vice President....	Rich Secor
	Marve Graves
Secretary-Treasurer...	Keith Gant
Editor.....	Karen Secor
Wagon Masters.....	Terry Bouck
	Wayne Erickson
	Tyree Lamph
	Marve Graves

See you at the meeting.

Stimson's and Kar Kwik Tokens

Stimson's Market has sold groceries on the corner of 26th and Monroe in Ogden since the 1950's. They opened another store in Layton on North Main. Later they started a large chain of convenience stores called Kar Kwik.

Verlin Reddish, a construction worker who happened to have a leg crippled from polio, takes credit for talking Mr. Stimson into putting in the first drive-up window. He pointed out that there were probably lots of other people who were tired and sore after a hard day's work, and didn't feel like getting out of their cars to pick up a few things at the store.

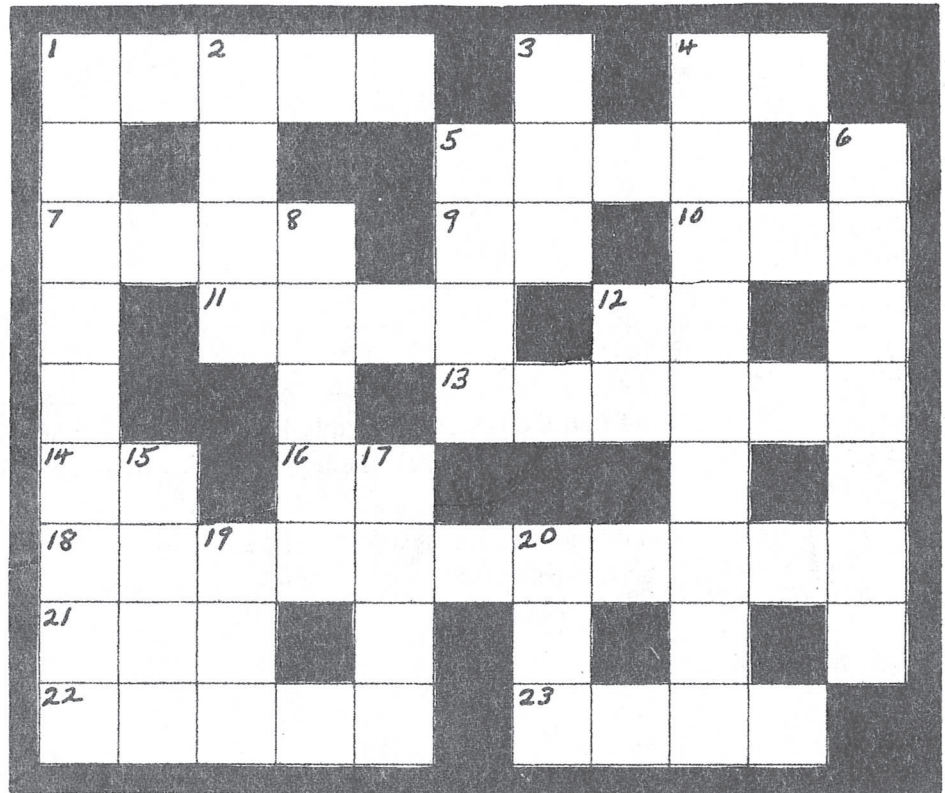

Today all the Kar Kwik stores have either been closed or sold out to other companies, but the two Stimson's stores remain.

These are examples of some of their wooden nickels and aluminum tokens.

Glittering prize: part of the hoard of coins discovered in a barley field. The money would have paid a Roman soldier's wages for 10 years

Lucky: Martin and Kevin Elliott can keep their find

Finders keep Roman coins

A MAN found Britain's largest haul of early Roman silver coins within minutes of switching on a metal detector for the first time, an inquest was told yesterday.

Kevin Elliott, who was being shown how to use the device by his cousin Martin, discovered a coin in a gateway on his father's farm at Shapwick, near Glastonbury, Somerset.

Within half an hour they had found 9,377 denarii 10 inches below the surface of a barley field. Michael Rose,

By David Millward

the Somerset coroner, ruled that the find in August 1998 was treasure, following the 40-minute hearing at Taunton. The men will now either receive the coins' full market value from Somerset County Museum or, if it cannot raise the money, keep the haul.

The hoard includes two coins from the weeks-long reign of Manlia Scantilla in AD193. They are the first to have been found in Britain.

Dr Richard Abdy, from the British Museum, said: "The coins were buried in about AD230 and were the equivalent to about 10 years' pay for a legionary soldier."

Steve Minnitt, curator of the Somerset County Museum, praised the finders for reporting their find swiftly and co-operating with archaeologists.

The land is believed to have once been the site of a villa inhabited by a British family that adopted Roman ways, probably near a major road running from a port to the Fosse Way.
